Better Schooling

A REPORT WHICH HAS BEEN of interest to many Canadians was presented recently under the title "Better Schooling for Canada Youth". The report was the result of a study made over a period of four years by a committee made up of one representative each of a number of associations in the fields of agriculture, commerce, education, industry, labour and the home. The undertaking was financed by a number of associations, institutions, individual firms and labor organizations and its object was to find "what constitutes a satisfactory school education for the Canadian youth who go directly to employment from school." The work was inspired by the late Dr. Fletcher Bowyer, president of the Canadian Education Association in 1944, when he told the Canadian Manufacturers' Association that if funds were provided, the Educational Association would be glad to do what was wrong with education.

Slow To Meet Rural Needs

The resulting report gave some interesting facts concerning secondary schooling in rural areas. It pointed out that recommendations based on the findings of the committee. One part of the report dealt with the needs of secondary schools in rural areas. It said "Agriculture is a vital industry in Canada, but the secondary schools have been slow to develop courses in this field." It went on to say that secondary schools in rural areas are frequently small and offer only a limited course, and also that there is a mistaken impression among many people that agriculture is an unskilled occupation, for which no special training is needed beyond that which the farm boy receives at home. On the contrary, those who made a study of this matter arrived at the conclusion that agriculture is a business for which technical education as well as a good general education is needed.

Says Studies Should Go On

The report recommends that secondary schools in rural areas should continue to study the needs of the rural community, economic, conservation, marketing, farm organization, consumer problems, farm management, and other subjects. It also suggested that attention should be given to making farm life more attractive by the study of rural development, rural planning, and the problems of farm homes and kindred subjects. The problem of rural education was only one of many discussed in the report, which concluded with recommendations that continuing research should be carried on with the object of improving secondary education in Canada to meet the needs of the country in these changing times.

GARDEN NOTES

Cultivation Not Only Kills Weeds, But Keeps Soil In Condition

Why Cultivate? Weeding is only minor reason for cultivation. The main purpose is to put the soil in condition that is favorable to the growth of the plants we want. Most soils, especially in the prairie provinces, are very hard and compacted. They are very hard to pull down so that plants either good or bad have little chance to flourish. Cultivation keeps the soil loose and aerated, and lets in necessary air. In time, the soil will be so loose and aerated that the texture of soil, though the addition of humus and fertilizer will speed the process. Experts usually advise that gardeners should keep their gardens, both flower and vegetable, once a week during the growing season that from the time the soil is not to work in the spring until the first digging or plowing in the spring. Much of the work can be accomplished easily by dragging a cultivator (either hand or tractor powered) over the ground lightly.

Weeds do not get much of a chance to grow big in a week, though they will be a bit tougher to handle if left unattended much longer than that. It is really amazing how growth spurts follow after a good cultivation. Frequently in this time of the year, if done after a shower, then it is very easy to see the difference. It is very easy to see the difference. It is very easy to see the difference.

As a general rule, tincture that eat weeds are the best. Careful gardeners will also apply themselves with some care to a dusting of gravel or sand. This is all sorts of equipment available, and for the most part, it is not necessary to spend much on it.

Funny and Otherwise

While attending a night club with a favourite sister, a put went to the cloakroom to repair her face and met several friends she hadn't seen for a long time. They started gossiping and went on and on.

Presently an attendant handed her a note. It was from the cloakroom. It said: "Your sister is waiting for you in the cloakroom. She says she has a cold and is coughing."

"How much does your hair weigh now, Auntie?"

"Well, Mamma says it gets a bit lighter every time you go and see the hairdresser."

His mother-in-law had written to say that she was coming to the city for a short time. If they were there, she would be glad to see them. As she had been away for some time, she would be glad to see them.

"Dear me," she gasped, her face pale. "I didn't think I'd go so far as this!"

"My George, how do you like married life?"

"Like it like a bird, boss."

"You know I had to try for my life."

"No and my neighbor are on speaking terms."

"The latest and the best of all to use on my lawnmower when I started to cut the grass at six in the morning."

"Dear old dad told him to do it on his own. He started singing at seven at night."

"We've just been congratulating Colonel Budge, said a guest at a luncheon. "He's been appointed governor of a province."

"Budge is a jolly little fellow. Now, for a job like that doesn't one influence, or one starts as a comedian?"

"The boss returned from a luncheon in happy mood and told us that he had just been elected to the job of chief of police. He was a jolly little fellow. Now, for a job like that doesn't one influence, or one starts as a comedian?"

Forestry Association Conducts Successful Poster Competition

In connection with Forest Conservation Week, a poster competition was held, open to all school pupils in the Western Provinces, with Provincial prizes, and a Grand Prize for the best.

This contest closed with a total of 947 posters submitted from the three provinces. Alberta, 322; Manitoba, 315; Saskatchewan, 310. As yet more than three, and it was not more than one poster was forwarded from a school over 100 schools or school districts, took an active part in this project. Based on a class of twenty-five students, work on these posters was pushed under pressure by over 17,000 pupils, and the results were collected from all over the West, from both city and rural schools, with many entries coming from small towns and villages.

As the main objective of the contest was to increase the knowledge of forest resources, the understanding of the importance of the forest, and the conservation of the forest, the contest was held with considerable success. It was a very successful project, and the results were collected from all over the West, from both city and rural schools, with many entries coming from small towns and villages.

BERLIN—Seven years ago Adolf Hitler's 1,000-year Reich seemed to be the most secure of empires. At Berlin were the tomb Nazi Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel, later to die on the scaffold at Nuremberg, signed the Wehrmacht's total surrender here on the last week of the war.

Struck by a 7,000-ton Great Lakes freighter from Chicago, half of the twin-section lift bridge at Burlington, Ont., collapsed into the north channel which connects Lake Ontario to Hamilton Bay and later sank in 20 feet of water. Loaded with a shipment of sand, the W.E. PROTECTING FOOD, 600 PRISONERS STAGE $400,000 RIOT AT MONTREAL JAIL—The sword ran in the history of Montreal and in Montreal was caused by 600 prisoners protesting the quality of food being served to them. The riot, which began in the dining-room, extended into cell and corridors, where furniture and plumbing installations were broken and into machine shop, canteen, mess hall, kitchen, where small fires were set. For five hours the mob ruled the jail and the courtyard, causing $400,000 damage, during which time they protected the food and bawled for a change in the government of the jail. Not until the frenzy of the rioters had and down did police and guards, acting on orders, move into the yard to form some sort of order out of chaos. No attempts to escape or lives lost were reported during "free-for-all".—Central Press Canadian.
